The Knight Eldritch is a fighter subclass (known as martial archetype) found in the player’s manual that combines martial skill and class survival with spell skills taken from the magist list of the magician. The characters that combine elements of arcane and martial skill are known as constructions á “gishá” and fall into a kind of spectrum between the most medium and martial extremes. The Magician of Bladedancer, for example, allows a powerful sorcerer to defend himself in combat “through a mixture of skill and minor protections”, while subclasses such as the bard of the College of Value achieve a more balance achieve a balance more Equal á “<To the middle armor warriors with access to powerful sorcerers. The Knight Eldritch is very close to the martial end of the spectrum. The subclass retains almost all the ability to survive and combat skill of other struggle archetypes, but with the adding of a certain sorcerer versatility. This spell focuses, however, on the two most social schools: evocation focused on the offense and defensive abjuration. Skills defining the eldritch’s skills Link Soul with your chosen weapons spell spell plane of existence is not very shocking largely not imagination. Basically, all the skills of the eldritch Knight subclass feel at home in this class. class. 3rd or maybe the only one). The mediocre power curve of the Eldritch Knight spell list means that it is very easy to wonder why you not only play a dedicated fighter or a complete magician, or an arcane cheater for that matter for that matter. . The whole class really seems that it is doing with incremental power peaks instead of the massive and devastating blessings that other classes unlock at higher levels. However, there is a reason why Eldritch Knight looks a bit disappointing on paper. Namely, the base combat class is very, very strong. This class has a great competition, has a great á < xito dice and gets something á Etlí almost every round, whether it is an increase in skill score, an additional attack or something more. There are many other classes (looking at you, a magician) that they have to suffer through numerous “traffic levels” to reach their good things. The fighters, on the other hand, continue to collect pieces and á ostile pieces all the way. Its subclass characteristics are really just the cherry icing. In the case of Eldritch Knight, it is a thin armor and slightly medical form, but it is a very, very good cake. Progress: The subclass characteristics We take a look at the Knight of the 1st level to 20. Note that this subclass does not cover the class functions available for all fighters, such as Second Wind Action arises and Extra detail Attack; You can click here to see our full guide for the base combat class. Castro of third level spells: its access to (bits of) The list of spells of the magician is the heart and the soul of this subclass. However, you can’t open the spell list and grab what you like. The spells you learn are limited to evocation and abjuration schools unless otherwise indicated. On the third level, you learn two cantrips from the Assistant’s spell list. rodataní rodataní se neib IS .n^Áiccovye y n^Áicárujba ed senoícap sal a atímil es on euqrop etenemalcepse .sadhí^As senoícap sanugla yih AugA .levín omic^Ad le ne roípe pick up something for damage (like Green-Flame Blade). I also like useful cantrips like prestige, magic hand, and lesser illusion as your gun attacks are likely to inflict more reliable damage anyway, even before you bring the multi attack on the equation. You also learn three spells from top-level wizards, two of which must be from the schools of evocation or abjuration. Later, when you learn and/or/replace spells on your list, they should also be from these schools. The exceptions to this rule are the spells you learn at levels 8, 14 and 20, which can come from any magic school. To make your character less dependent on your spell attack modifier and save DC spells, try selecting spells that don’t depend on a spell attack or force your enemies to make save throws. Absorb Elements, Shield and Booming Blade are solid options here. You can see Eldritch Knight’s full spell chart here. Eldritch Knight Spellcasting Weapon Bond: Also at the third level, Eldritch Knights gain the ability to form a bond with up to two weapons of their choice. This is done by performing a ritual of one hour duration, at the end of which the armament union is completed. You can join up to two weapons this way, and joining up with a third weapon requires you to break one of your existing links. Once attached to a weapon, a Knight Eldritch cannot disarm it until he is incapacitated. Also, while the weapon is on the same plane of existence as your master, you can invoke it as an extra action on your turn, causing it to be instantly teleported to your hand. It’s not just the perfect way to smuggle a couple of guns to any guard, re-equip yourself appropriately after escaping from prison, prevent a powerful device from falling into enemy hands, or any other amount of zev zev arts omsim ol odneíach ogelí y .onam ut ne olodn^Áínop n^Áicáru gíncoc etenemacígíAm ,ogímene ed oemíÁrc led s@Avart a zánal amí raznal euq ocíílíAtem siÁM ogla yuh emírced sotídemí tura, 7th War Magic: From the last level, the Magic War ability helps reduce the opportunity cost of using a cantrip instead of making multiple weapons attacks in their turn. When you throw a cantrip using your action, War Magic allows you to make an attack of weapons using your bonus action. This can be highly effective since it uses a Cantrip like Blade Ward to constantly resistance to the damage of weapons attacks, which allows you to throw against combat with virtual impunity. Type Eldritch Strike: You learn to mix martial and arcane skills, which means that you can use arms attacks to interfere with the ability of a creature to make salvation throws against your spells. When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, that creature has a disadvantage in the following salvation launch that makes a spell that you throw before the end of your next turn. This is quite good, but at this point your spell list is already beginning to feel seriously surpassed by dedicated spell pitchers, so it is not as good as it could be. Asá, it is a good way to make sure that your limited group of spell slots gets well. I would only want this ability to give enemies a disadvantage of saving throws against other people’s spells too. 15 + Arcane position: this is thematic and meekly strong. The arcane load allows you to teleport up to 30 feet to an unoccupied space that you can see (hibiscally, launches the misty passage spell) every time you use your action increase. You can also choose to teleport before or after the additional action, which makes Arcane Charge be the ability to initiate perfect or the last meonic of exhaust. 18á Magic of improved war: the ability of this subclass “Capstone” extends his warm ability of war to levels level spells in addition to Cantrips. That is Useful, but it seems too late. Multiclassing and providing you with new and diverse ways to create interesting character concepts, multiclassing can be a great way to emphasize the strengths of a particular class or compensate for their in the case of the Knights Eldritch, who feels very strong at the lower levels and considerably more at the higher levels III and IV, multiclassification can be a great way to overcome class limitations. Keep in mind, however, that this subclass is already enough Mad, so the options that impose additional demands on your skill scores will make you feel as if you were stretching your construction more thin. That said, there are a couple of options for multiclass constructions that synergize with the gentleman Eldritch. Artificer (Battle Smith) immerse themselves for sufficient levels to choose the Battle Smith subclass, which allows you S close to a single skill -dependent class. The art. Wizard (any) This choice drags you more towards the direction of being a complete pitcher (and opens all kinds of conversations about why I do not only play a sword singer or a sword bard) By expanding your group of spells at the expense of the points of a @ xito and the combat levels. Character creation: Building a gentleman Eldritch now, let's take a look how to build an effective eldritch knight from the first level. Primary skill scores: Skill, Constitutional II; Intelligenceier III; Charisma, Wisdom Absolute Dump Tier: Strength regardless of how you generate your skill scores, combatants normally want to prioritize strength to make damage (or skill if you are going to build a range of rank or finals) and the constitution to remain alive. The Knight Eldritch, however, will do things differently. In order to minimize the number of of skill on which this subclass depends, I strongly recommend going to a dexterity-based construction that uses weapons of range and finesse and uses medium armor. You can also become less MAD by reducing your initial in Intelligence by choosing spells that do not require enemies to make save throws or for you to make spell attacks. Options like Booming Blade, Shield and Resist Energy give you useful advantages using your spell slots, but do not require you to have a particularly high Intelligence score. This can be a great way to avoid being too MAD from the start. You can choose more skill-dependent spells later, when your abundant skill score increases allow you to get your Intelligence to 18 or higher. Careers Unless you're using a custom lineage from Tasha's Cauldron of Everything, you're going to want to choose a race that benefits from one or more of your required skill scores (Dexterity, Constitution and Intelligence). This is especially important for a subclass like Knight Eldritch who may be MAD. High Elf The perfect blend of deadly grace and magical style, High Elves get a +2 bonus to their dexterity and a +1 bonus to their intelligence, making them a more or less perfect starting point for an Eldritch Knight. They also get a free wizard cantrip, competition in Perception, and Ancestral Fey. Genasi Fire Coming from the elemental Fire Plane, these half-genius humanoid gain a useful Intelligence +1 in addition to +2 Constitution. They also have fire resistance and can innately throw the Produce Flame cantrip on the 1st level, as well as Burning Hands on the 3rd level. Githyanki If you don't mind following the more traditional Force-based path, you might like the original incarnation of a half martial, half sorcerer humanoid. Githyanki warriors navigate the Astral Sea as dimensional pirates or psychic knights. Githyanki gets a +1 intelligence bonus and a +2 increase to their Fer, Force, not to mention a small suite of spells and psychic cantrips, including Magic Hand and Misty Step. The Soldier background is also a strong option for any fighter, giving him access to the Charisma (Intimidation) and and (Athletics) Based skills. Besides, it makes a lot of narrative sense. Regardless of your character continuing to be part of your military team or he has been discharged (or has even become corrupt due to the arcane predilections of it), it can be a great source of material so that your DM works. Other origins, such as the nobleman, veteran mercenary, gentleman (particularly good if you want a puzzle of clumsy and hanger retainers), and have one (a good choice of skills and the best starting team in the game if you want to ruin some vampires) can be excellent background of combat. Skills and languages Any race that you choose will be able to speak in common, and there are any of that, you must choose languages that fit your background and the campaign in which you play. As for the skills available for the fighter, athletics will play in his primary ability and strength and be good to fight and push enemies likely to take advantage of attacks. More than that, the stealth (á ígétile to counteract the disadvantage of using a heavy armor), perception (an evergreen option for any class), insight and intimidation are all universally powerful. You should feel free to choose depending on your background history or any skill that coincides with your second or third score of more high ability. Struggle style All fighters have access to a struggle style at the 1st level. You can read our complete breakdown in the combat classes, but our suggestion for a gentleman Eldritch would be something as defense, since it means that it will depend less on using a shield, freeing your spare hand for annoying materials and Somá components Ticos. As a 1/3 caster, youéÁÁÁre pretty much going to always be límíted to maybe one spell per engagemínt. Also, because youéÁÁÁre going to be quíte multí-ábílíty dependént, gamblíng the success of one of your précíous few spell slots on something wíth an atíack roll or a savíng throw ís rísky éÁÁÁ the opportunity cost of an enemy passíng a save agáinst Hold Person and wastíng your only 2nd-level spell for the day ís too much. Ínstead, youéÁÁÁÁre going to want to píck spells that wíll eíther déal some damáge on a successfúl savíng throw (píckíng up íreball ís líterally never a bad ídea on any class at pretty much any level) or doneÁÁÁt require any rolls to be effeCtíve. Stuff líke Absorb Energy and Shield are réally ímportant here. Honestly, because your spell líst ís always going to lag behínd that of a more dédícated cãster class, thereéÁÁÁs very líttle pínt ínvestíng too heávily ínto offensíve spells (of course, thís all dependís on your party compositíon). YouéÁÁÁAll get more use out of defensíve and útlílty magíc éÁÁÁ anything to keep you ín the íght for a few more rounds. All thíngs consídered, Eldrích Kngíhts can be loads of fun to play. Who wóuldneÁÁÁt want to be a teleportíng magíc badás that can summon thér sword out of thín ár? Just make sure youéÁÁÁÁre manágíng a límíted pool of magícal resourcés. Run out too soon, and youéÁÁÁAll just be a régular old íghter wíth a few cantríps. Of course, thereéÁÁÁs nothing espécíally wróng wíth that eíther éÁÁÁ just sométhíng to keep ín mínd before you take the plunge. Hopefully thís ímage has set you ín good stead to start playíng thís ínteréstíng, surprísíngly trícKy subclass at the table.
